Alexander Building Construction Co. completes new Office Building

Harrisburg, PA, October 1, 2009 . . . Alexander Building Construction recently completed a new administrative office building for Geisinger Health System in Bloomsburg, PA. The new three-story building will provide approximately 90,000 square feet of office space for Geisinger's administrative functions. The project was completed ahead of schedule in 13 months. Alexander performed construction management services for the project, including the development of a Building Information Model which will be used post-construction to assist the client with future building management activities. Designed by Borton-Lawson Architecture of Wilkes Barre, PA, the project is pending LEED® certification by the U.S. Green Building Council.
