Alexander Building Construction announces promotions, professional certification, and new hire

Harrisburg, PA, April 12, 2011 . . . Alexander Building Construction announced the following promotions, professional certifications and new employees:

Michael R. Stambaugh, LEED AP, has been promoted to project manager. He has been a project engineer with the company since 2006 and has eleven years of construction experience. Mike is a 2000 graduate of the Pennsylvania College of Technology where he earned a degree in Construction Management.

Michael T. Sgriccia, LEED AP, has also been promoted to project manager. He has been a project engineer with Alexander since graduating from Penn State University with a M.S. in Civil Engineering in 2007. Mike also holds a B.S. degree in Civil Engineering and he is a member of the Leadership Centre County Class of 2011.

Daniel J. Flickinger, LEED AP, Project Manager, has earned the designation of Certified Construction Manager (CCM) awarded by the Construction Management Association of America. This designation is earned when a person in the construction field demonstrates significant project related construction management experience via a qualifications and reference based application and successfully completes an examination. An individual with the CCM designation has demonstrated that he or she will adhere to the CMAA Code of Ethics and will follow the CMAA Standards of Practice. Dan has worked at Alexander for 13 years as a project engineer and project manager and has managed many of Alexander's construction management projects in the past nine years.

Dennis Walter Jr. has been hired as a project engineer. Dennis recently completed a Bachelor's and Master's degree of Architectural Engineering from Penn State University in the Construction Management Option. Dennis is assigned to Alexander's newest CM assignments at the Mount Nittany Medical Center in State College.
