Harrisburg, PA, January 9, 2012 . . . Stephen A. Wilt, General Manager for Alexander Building Construction, completed the 2011 Executive Leadership Series (ELS), A Program of Leadership Harrisburg Area. The ELS Program is designed to increase awareness of the Capital Region’s strengths, challenges and current initiatives, and to provide a platform for program participants to build partnerships for positive impacts in the areas of arts and culture, government, economic development, education, human services and healthcare.

“The Executive Leadership Series provided me with an opportunity to gain extensive knowledge of the assets and challenges of the Capital Region and to connect and collaborate with a diverse group of professionals. I have no doubt that the experience and knowledge I gained through the program will enhance my ability to serve the community in a variety of leadership roles,” says Wilt.

Wilt has been with Alexander since 1999. During that time, he has overseen the construction process on projects totaling more than $350 million in construction value. As Project Executive, he is the senior level oversight of Alexander’s construction projects in the Harrisburg area to ensure outstanding client service and project performance. “Steve has shown great leadership as a project manager and now the general manager at Alexander through his work ethic and commitment to the company,” says Rick Seitz, President. “Community service is very important to us and I commend his efforts to learn more about the community where Alexander has been based for more than 80 years. His completion of the Executive Leadership Series will make him an even more effective member of our team and the Capital Region.”
